Background

Human rights

- Historical struggles behind the Human Rights framework
- Post WWII 10th December 1948, Universal Declaration of Human Rights

A global perspective on Human Rights: First Generation

- The state is responsible to insure dignity and security of each citizen
 - Physical Integrity
 - Protection against discrimination
 - Correct representation in law
 - Freedom of believe, expression and association
 - Political participation

Second generation

- The necessary conditions to meet the basic needs of human life and dignity
- Rights such as access to food, education, health care, work and housing

About Vulnerability

- Vulnerability is exposed when social infrastructures are increasingly dismantled and fail to address needs and capabilities or to tailor services accordingly (Buttler; 2000) .

Self reflection and sharing with a peer

- Which are the privileges of my own position?

Nussbaum perspective: a fully human life

Capabilities approach

”What people are actually able to do and to be”

Community based work

- “A development strategy within the general community striving for social inclusion and equal opportunities” (Suarez-Balcazar, 2005)

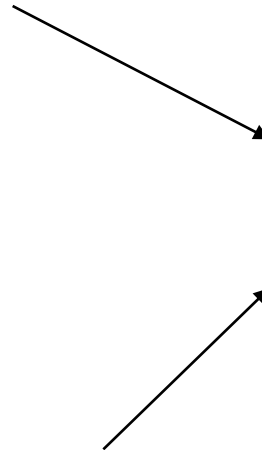

Community based work: Green Initiation

- Identified group: refugees seeking for employment but having mental health problems
- Partnership between Employment office, Stockholm commune, refugees and local community
- Groups of 12 refugees meet in a structured environment for 12 weeks and do diverse garden activities.
- Team: OT, social worker, psychologist, gardener and local community

- Collaborative
- Action
- Participatory Action
- Emancipatory
- Community based
- Transformative

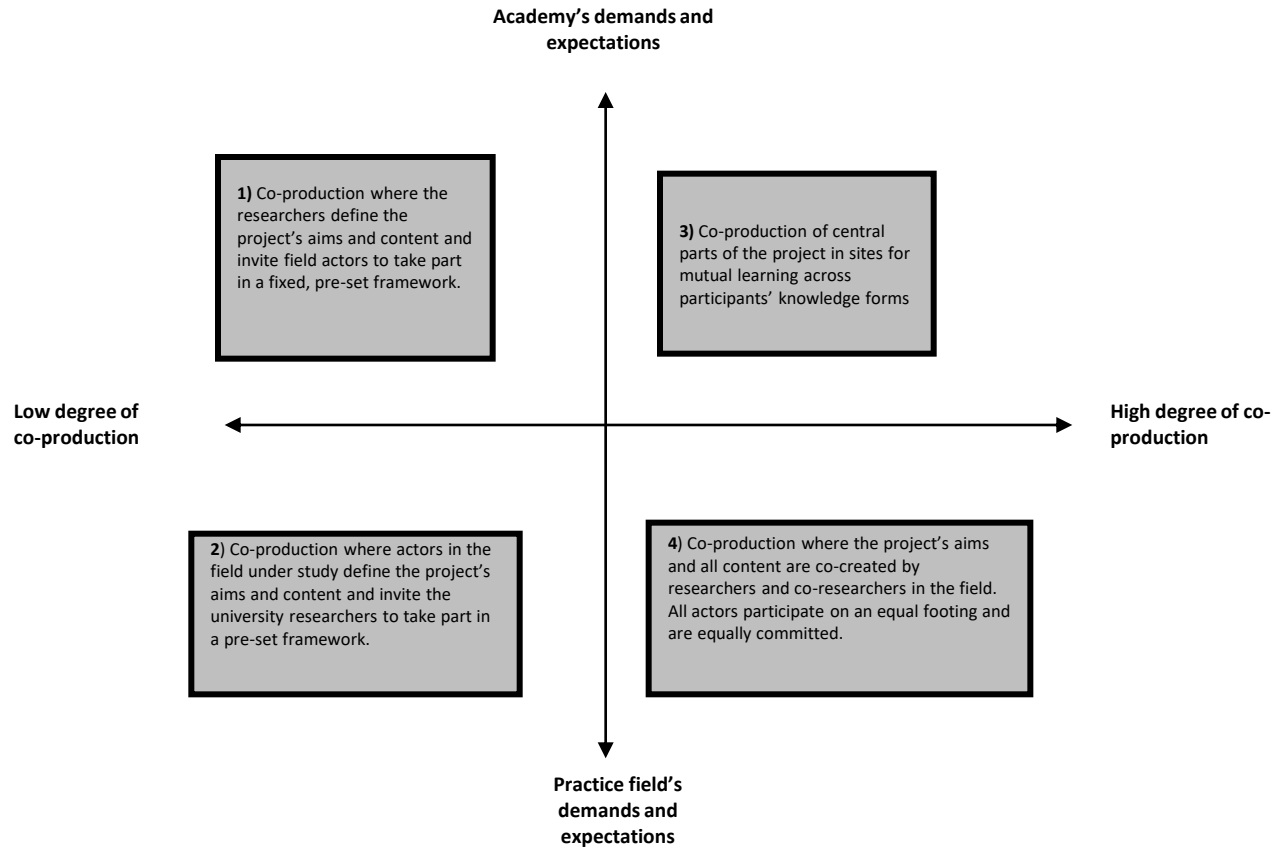

Research

Participatory approaches

- The methodological decision to collaborate with the people studied is guided by a desire to democratize knowledge production and to give more people the opportunity to have voice in defining the boundaries of the possible (Reason and Bradbury, 2008).
